You can contact the Data Protection Officer by email: tietosuoja@helsinki.fi

3. Why do we process your personal data and what is the lawful basis for processing?

It is the mission of Helsinki Brain & Mind (HB&M) to promote and advance the research taking place within the network. We collect personal data to set up and maintain the Helsinki Brain & Mind Researcher web portal. The portal is designed to help researchers find other researchers for collaboration, as well as to help different HB&M stakeholders to find researchers within the network to collaborate with.

The legal basis for the processing is general good and your consent, which you may withdraw at any time. Basic information, such as name, email address, affiliations and research group name and keywords are published based on general good, to carry out the university's task of promoting and advancing research. With their consent and input, researchers can add additional details, such as research description and interest in collaboration with stakeholders, into the portal.

The legal basis for processing is:

- ☒ your consent that you can withdraw
- ☒ the processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority
 - ☐ scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes
 - ☐ archiving
 - ☒ university's task carried out in the public interest

4. What personal data do we process?

We process the following data:

- Basic information, such as name, email address, working organisation and unit, affiliations, research group's name and research keywords, as well as any relevant links are published as standard.
- More detailed information regarding research topics and methods, as well as interest in potential collaboration with stakeholders is published if the researcher wishes to submit this information.

5. What are the sources for personal data?

The basic data is collected from public sources: websites, such as <https://www.helsinki.fi/fi>; <https://researchportal.helsinki.fi/>; <https://www.aalto.fi/fi>; <https://www.hus.fi/> and researcher's own websites.

In addition, researchers can complement the data by adding relevant information themselves.

6. Do we disclose your personal data to third parties?

The data is published in the Helsinki Brain & Mind Researcher Portal, which is a public web portal. The IT service provider who develops the portal has access to the data during the development. In addition, the data can be disclosed to and be used in the activities of Neurocenter Finland, for the purpose of identifying Finnish neuroscience researchers and clinicians working on specific topics.

7. For how long do we process and retain your personal data?

The data is processed and retained permanently, according to the updating practices as follows:

- The aim is to keep the portal up-to-date, containing information of researchers currently working in the organisations and on topics relevant to the HB&M network.
 - This means that if a person is no longer working in one of the organisations or areas of interest belonging to HB&M, their information is aimed to be removed.
 - Although every attempt is made to keep the portal up-to-date, there may be some delay in the removal of researchers, if HB&M does not receive or find the information regarding a researcher's change of working status at the earliest time point. Researchers are encouraged to inform the contact person (section 1) as per change of their working status described above.
- The data is removed if the researcher no longer wishes to belong to the portal and informs the contact person (section 1).

8. Transfers of personal data to countries outside the EU/European Economic Area

No personal data will be transferred to recipients outside the European Economic Area.

9. What rights do you have?

The contact person in matters concerning the rights of the participant is the person mentioned in section 1 of this notice.

Right to withdraw your consent

When the processing is based on your consent, you have the right to withdraw your consent any time. The withdrawal of your consent does not affect the lawfulness of processing based on consent before the withdrawal.

Right to access

You have the right to know whether we process your personal data and what data we process about you. You have also the right to request for the access to that data.

Right to rectification

You have the right to request for the rectification of inaccurate personal data concerning you. You also have the right to have incomplete personal data completed.

Right to erasure and right to be forgotten

You have the right to request for the erasure of your data from our systems. The data will be erased in the following cases:

- a) the personal data are no longer necessary in relation to the purposes for which they were collected or otherwise processed
- b) You withdraw your consent on which the processing was based and there is no other legal ground for the processing

- c) You object for the processing and there are no overriding legitimate grounds for the processing
- d) The personal data have been unlawfully processed
- e) The personal data have to be erased for compliance with a legal obligation in Union or Member State law to which the controller is subject

You do not have the right to erasure, if the processing is necessary:

- a) For compliance with a legal obligation which requires processing by law
- b) For the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority
- c) For archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes if the erasure is likely to render impossible or seriously impair the achievement of the objectives of that processing
- d) For the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims

Right to restriction of processing

You have the right to request for the restriction of processing. This means that we store the data but do not process it in any other way.

You have this right when:

- a) The accuracy of the personal data is contested by you. Then the processing will be restricted until the accuracy of the data is verified.
- b) The processing is unlawful and the data subject opposes the erasure of the personal data and requests the restriction of their use instead
- c) We no longer need the data for the purposes of the processing, but you need the data for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims
- d) You have objected to processing that is based on legitimate interest. Then the processing will be restricted for the time it is verified whether the legitimate ground for the controller override those of the data subject.

Right to data portability

When the processing is done by automatically means and the processing is based on your consent or a contract between you and the University, you have the right to have your data that you have provided, in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format and have the right to transmit this data to another controller.]

When it is technically feasible, you have the right to have the data transmitted directly to the other controller.

Right to object

You have the right to object for the processing of your personal data. Then we shall no longer process the data unless we demonstrate compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which overrides the interests, rights and freedoms of the data subject or for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims. University can also continue to process your personal data if it is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest.

Right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority

You can always contact us if you have any questions or concerns about the processing of your personal data. However, you have also the right to lodge a complaint with the Data Protection Ombudsman's Office if you think your personal data has been processed in violation of applicable data protection laws.
